

UNDER HIS WINGS

As the eagle must force her young
From the nest to teach them to fly,
So, our Father must press us out of routine
To the things he'd have us try.

And, just as the eagle guards her own
To insure their safety in flight,
Our Lord is near when we try our wings;
We're never out of his sight

But, should the eaglet begin to fall,
The eagle swoops down from above
To rescue its young and bear it up
On wings of strength and love.

So, how can we doubt the eagle's Creator,
The one who made us all,
Would fail to save and deliver us
If we should start to fall?

--Norma H.
Sister in Christ 43 years